TWO MEN TO CHOOSE BETWEEN

MEN AND WOMEN ELECTORS OF LENNOX AND ADDINGTON HAVE CHOICE BETWEEN EDWARD W. GRANGE AND W. J. PAUL.

Stand of Independent Liberal Candidate on Conscription Issue and Union Government Outlined at Public Meeting.

The electors of Lennox and Addington—men and women—had two men to choose between for their representative in Parliament.

One is Edward W. Grange, a number of one of Napanee's oldest families, who has achieved a Dominion-wide reputation as a journalist, who has been a close observer and interpreter of national affairs at the Capital for the past ten years and who is running as an Independent Liberal. The other is William J. Paul ex-M.P. who has represented the riding for the past six years, who has supported every act of the Borden Government, whose only utterance in Parliament apart from voting, was a six-minute speech dealing with his own line of business, namely cheese, and who is running as a straight Conservative supporting Sir Robert Borden.

These were the only men nominated on Monday last at the Court House, when Returning Officer, D. H. Preston K.C., called for the official nominations. There had been some talk of a third candidate to run as a straight anti-conscriptionist or a straight Laurier Liberal, but this was settled on Thursday night of last week when a crowded meeting in the Napanee Town Hall, after hearing a full and frank statement of Mr. Grange's views, decided that the field should be left clear to him in order to give a united front for all those opposed to the six-years' record of the Borden Administration, and who are now anxious to secure honesty and efficiency in carrying on the people's business and in the prosecution of the war.

At that meeting, which was attended by a considerable number of Conservatives and by nearly two hundred farmers from all parts of the County, the main question discussed was the conscription issue. The meeting was called to consider action by those "opposed to the views of both the nominated candidates."

MR. PAUL'S CONSCRIPTION STAND.

Mr. Paul's course in voting unreservedly and blindly for conscription, and conscription of men only and not of wealth, without making any statement either in Parliament or outside qualifying his attitude either in regard to the method and manner of the introduction of the conscription measure in regard to all the needs in the home and war situation or in regard to the right of the people themselves to decide the issue, was seriously criticized. He had no apologists.

MR. GRANGE'S VIEW.

Mr. Grange declared that conscription had been brought in without any clear realization by the Government of how Canada could best distribute her resources of men and material for war effort according to the needs of the Allies in food, munitions, wealth or fighting force; without adequate preparation or education of the public following a haphazard trial of the voluntary system without regard to its effect on national unity; without regard to the needs of continued and increased agricultural production and without regard to the fundamental principles of responsible government,

ENDORSES PRINCIPLE NOT METHOD

At the same time, however, he frankly declared his belief in the principle of compulsory service of every kind in time of national peril and that the State, when in danger, had the right to compel every man to give useful or necessary service either at home or at the front in time of war. Holding these views, he declared, he must hold himself free to vote on any further measure in the new Parliament according to his best judgment as to war and home necessities. But he pledged himself to consult the loyal electors of Lennox and Addington if the issue of a further measure of conscripting men for the trenches without a referendum should come up in the new Parliament. In that event he was willing to abide by the verdict of the men he sought to represent, standing, so far as Lennox and Addington was concerned. On the same fundamental principle as Sir Wilfrid Laurier, namely that the people must rule. He did not believe, however, that Canada's decision as to quitting or going ahead with the war to the end should be left to other than loyal men. He would trust the ultimate decision to the loyal electors of Lennox and Addington. He would not trust it to the Nationalists of Quebec.

AS TO UNION GOVERNMENT.

In regard to the question of supporting the Union Government, Mr. Grange declared that all any man could pledge himself to support was principles—not men. In so far as the platform of "glittering generalities" enunciated by the new Borden Government, was concerned, he saw nothing in it. Everything depended on the concrete proposals. With regard to more effective organization of war effort, more adequate steps to stop war profiteering and graft, to reduce the cost of living, to check combines, to care for returned soldiers, to tax war profits, to stop waste and extravagance, etc., had been made by Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Opposition in Parliament. To all these proposals he gave his support. He did not believe there could be much hope of any real reform under Union Government as at present led and constituted. Sir Robert Borden, the man responsible for the mistakes of the past six years was still the leader of the Government and in him, or in the men who supported him blindly and without a single protest during the whole of the last Parliament, the people could have no further confidence.

UNION ONLY AS A POSE.

So far as Lennox and Addington was concerned, said Mr. Grange, there was no union at all. This was demonstrated by the fact that Mr. Paul had refused even the courtesy of reply to the fair offers of the Liberals for an attempt at securing a fusion, win-the-war candidate, irrespective of politics, who might be satisfactory to both parties. Had "Unionism" been anything more than a mere party disguise with a view to diverting the issue from his six years' record in Parliament, there could have been no objection at least meeting the Liberal offer his way.

That offer had been made with the design of testing out the sincerity of Mr. Paul and of his party-first followers and of showing up the win-the-war pose. Evidently the Conservative candidate did not want even to risk a public meeting which might call into question his own candidature. "On the other hand," said Mr. Grange, I took the course of calling a public meeting, explaining my stand under the new political conditions which have arisen and then giving opportunity for the selection of another candidate. On our side, any rate, we are not afraid to let the majority rule. We do not believe in any family compact, especially in war time. Personal or party gain does not come first.

PARTY APPROPRIATORS.

Mr. Grange noted also that there was no unionism in the appointment of the enumerators to prepare the lists for the coming election. Every man appointed was a straight Tory. But despite all this Mr. Paul was not officially endorsed by Sir Robert B

MR. PAUL'S CONSCRIPTION STAND.

Mr. Paul's course in voting unreveredly and blindly for conscription, and conscription of men only and not of wealth, without making any statement either in Parliament or outside, qualifying his attitude either in regard to the method and manner of the introduction of the conscription measure in regard to all the needs in the home and war situation or in regard to the right of the people themselves to decide the issue, was serious-

Mr. Grange noted also that there was no unionism in the appointment of the enumerators to prepare the lists for the coming election. Every man appointed was a straight Tory. But despite all this Mr. Paul was not officially endorsed by Sir Robert Borden.

The MINISTER OF FINANCE offers for Public Subscription

Canada's Victory Loan

Issue of

$150,000,000 5½% Gold Bonds

Bearing interest from December 1st, 1917, and offered in three maturities, the choice of which is optional with the subscriber, as follows:

5 year Bonds due December 1st, 1922
10 year Bonds due December 1st, 1927
20 year Bonds due December 1st, 1937

This Loan is authorized under Act of the Parliament of Canada, and both principal and interest are a charge upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund. The amount of this issue is $150,000,000, exclusive of the amount (if any) paid by the surrender of bonds of previous issues. The Minister of Finance however, reserves the right to allot the whole or any part of the amount subscribed in excess of $150,000,000.

The Proceeds of this Loan will be used for War purposes only, and will be spent wholly in Canada.

Principal and Interest payable in Gold
Denominations: $50, $100, $500 and $1,000

Subscriptions must be in sums of $50 or multiples thereof.

Principal payable without charge at the Office of the Minister of Finance and Receiver General at Ottawa, or at the Office of the Assistant Receiver General at Halifax, St. John, Charlottetown, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Victoria.

Interest payable, without charge, half-yearly, June 1st and December 1st, at any branch in Canada of any Chartered Bank.

Bearer or Registered Bonds

Bonds may be registered as to principal or as to principal and interest.

Scrip certificates, non-negotiable, or payable to bearer, in accordance with the choice of the applicant for registered or bearer bonds, will be issued after allotment in exchange for provisional receipts. When these scrip certificates have been paid in full, and payment endorsed thereon by the bank receiving the money they may be exchanged for bonds, when prepared, with coupons attached, payable to bearer, or registered as to principal, or for fully registered bonds when prepared, without coupons, in accordance with the application.

Delivery of interim certificates and of definitive bonds will be made through the Chartered Banks.

Bearer bonds with coupons will be issued in denominations of $50., $100., $500., and $1,000, and may be registered as to principal only. Fully registered bonds, the interest on which is paid direct to the owner by Government cheque, will be issued in denominations of $1,000., $5,000. or any authorized multiple of $5,000.

Subject to the payment of 25 cents for each new bond issued, holders of fully registered bonds without coupons, will have the right to convert into bonds of the denomination of $1,000 with coupons, and holders of bonds with coupons will have the right to convert into fully registered bonds of authorized denominations without coupons, at any time, on application to the Minister of Finance.

Surrender of Bonds

Holders of Dominion of Canada Debenture Stock, due October 1st, 1919, and bonds of the three preceding Dominion of Canada War Loan Issues, have the privilege of surrendering their bonds in part payment for subscriptions to bonds of this issue, under the following conditions:—

Debenture Stock, due October 1st, 1919, at Par and Accrued Interest.

War Loan Bonds, due December 1st, 1925, at 97½% and Accrued Interest.

(The above will be accepted in part payment for bonds of any of the three maturities of this Issue)

War Loan Bonds, due October 1st, 1931, at 97½% and Accrued Interest.

War Loan Bonds, due March 1st, 1937, at 96% and Accrued Interest.

(These will be accepted in part payment for bonds of the 1937 maturity ONLY of this Issue.)

Bonds of the various maturities of this issue will, in the event of future issues of like maturity, or longer, made by the Government, other than issues made abroad, be accepted at par and accrued interest, as the equivalent of cash for the purpose of subscription to such issues.

Issue Price Par

Free from taxes—including any income tax—imposed in pursuance of legislation enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

Payment to be made as follows:

10% on December 1st, 1917	20% on March 1st, 1918
10% on January 2nd, 1918	20% on April 1st, 1918
20% on February 1st, 1918	20% on May 1st, 1918

A full half year's interest will be paid on 1st June, 1918.

The Bonds therefore give a net interest yield to the investor of about:

5.61% on the 20 year Bonds
5.68% on the 10 year Bonds
5.81% on the 5 year Bonds

All payments are to be made to a Chartered Bank for the credit of the Minister of Finance. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render previous payments liable to forfeiture, and the allotment to cancellation. Subscriptions accompanied by a deposit of 10% of the amount subscribed, must be forwarded through the medium of a Chartered Bank. Any branch in Canada of any Chartered Bank will forward subscriptions and issue provisional receipts.

In case of partial allotments the surplus deposit will be applied toward payment of the amount due on the January instalment.

Subscriptions may be paid in full on January 2nd, 1918, or on any instalment due date thereafter under discount at the rate of 8½% per annum. Under this provision payments of the balance of subscriptions may be made as follows:

If paid on January 2nd, 1918, at the rate of 89.10795 per $100.
If paid on February 1st, 1918, at the rate of 79.46959 per $100.
If paid on March 1st, 1918, at the rate of 59.72274 per $100.
If paid on April 1st, 1918, at the rate of 39.90959 per $100.

Forms of application may be obtained from any branch in Canada of any Chartered Bank, or from any Victory Loan Committee, or member thereof. The books of the Loan will be kept at the Department of Finance, Ottawa. Applications will be made in due course for the listing of this issue on the Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

Subscription Lists will close on or before December 1st, 1917.

This was demonstrated by the fact that Mr. Paul had refused even the courtesy of a reply to the fair offers of the Liberals for an attempt at securing a fusion, win-the-war candidate, irrespective of politics, who might be satisfactory to both parties. Had his "Unionism" been anything more than a mere party disguise with a view to diverting the issue from his six years' record in Parliament, then there could have been no objection to at least meeting the Liberal offer half way.

That offer had been made with the design of testing out the sincerity of Mr. Paul and of his party-first followers and of showing up the win-the-war pose. Evidently the Conservative candidate did not want even to risk a public meeting which might call into question his own candidature. "On the other hand," said Mr. Grange, "I took the course of calling a public meeting, explaining my stand under the new political conditions which have arisen and then giving opportunity for the selection of another candidate. On our side, at any rate, we are not afraid to let the majority rule. We do not believe in any family compact, especially in war time. Personal or party gain does not come first."

PARTY OPERATORS.

Mr. Grange noted also that there was no unionism in the appointment of the enumerators to prepare the lists for the coming election. Every man appointed was a straight Tory. But despite all this Mr. Paul was now officially endorsed by Sir Robert Borden as the "Union" candidate. All Liberals and all independent electors could draw their own conclusions.

VIEWS OF OTHER SPEAKERS.

Mr. William R. Lott, of Napanee, a well-known and highly respected farmer, in a forceful speech declared that he favored strict adherence to the principle of a referendum on the conscription issue as advocated by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He believed there should be no departure from the stand taken by Sir Wilfrid in this regard although he agreed with Mr. Grange in everything else and was confident that the latter was honest in his convictions. Mr. Edward Harrison, reeve of Sheffield, held the same views as Mr. Lott in regard to strict adherence to Sir Wilfrid's stand on the conscription issue. Mr. J. L. Haycock, of Adolphustown, after pointing out the dangers and evils of the new franchise act, declared that towards the last of the campaign there would undoubtedly be an effort made by the Government to stampede the electors by the anti-Quebec cry. He warned the audience that possible rioting in Quebec over conscription would be used in Ontario to confuse the real issues and would perhaps elect the flag-waver's again.

After some further discussion in which Messrs. A. W. Martin, of Moscow; Robt. Paul, of Richmond; Archibald Ruttan, of South Fredericksburgh; W. D. Roblin, of Adolphustown; Fred Perry, Thos. Symington, and W. T. Gibbard, Napanee, and others took part a resolution, proposed by Mr. Lott, and seconded by Mr. A. Jackson, of Enterprise, re-indorsing Mr. Grange's candidature was carried.

Earle was wounded in the right shoulder by gun-shot on October 30th, 1917, and died of wounds three days later, in the forty-fourth Clearing Station, France.

Earle or "Gal" was widely known throughout this County and in Kingston where he attended Queen's University for four years. Born on the Galbraith farm which borders Varty Lake, he received his early education at Colebrook Public School, attended later, for five years, the High School at Newburgh, and the Napanee Collegiate for one year. From the latter institution he passed in 1912 with his Normal Entrance and Matriculation Certificates. In the fall of 1913 he joined the Arts '17 Class at Queen's University and attended College till the early spring of 1917, when he enlisted in the Ammunition Column then recruiting at Kingston. On reaching England two months later he was transferred to the Infantry branch of war-service and first plunged into Europe's blood-deluge towards the end of last July.

Those people who knew Earle intimately, know that he was in every way, cast in Canadian manhood's finest mould, that this sacrificing of his own promising future for the good of Canada is only one generous detail in the whole living of his generous life. Though always carefree and void of sternness there was no snivelling in his make-up—he smiled home in his letters out of that War—crucible of death, always with the true soldiers "Cheer-O."

His parents, his sister Violet, and brother Percy at home, his sister, Mrs. Davidson, at Wilkie, Sask., and his brother Howard, of Napanee have the deep sympathy of every friend.

AN OPEN LETTER

The people of the County have responded nobly to their Country's call. The response throughout Ontario and the whole Dominion has been spontaneous and very gratifying to those in charge, but all do not yet understand their Country's need. Victory must come to the Allied arms, but it will only come if all co-operate. Men and more men; money and more money, is the insistent cry. Have you bought your Victory Bond? If you cannot fight, you can contribute of your savings. Search your conscience and ask if you have done and are doing all you can. We are asking that you take your idle money and place it so that supplies from Canada may be purchased for Great Britain and our soldiers serving in the far flung battlefields of Europe and of Asia. The soldiers must be fed and clothed, and munitions must be supplied. Give your silver bullets and the soldiers will fire the leaden ones. Nelson's famous message to his men was, "England expects every man to do his duty." This is still the rallying cry throughout the Anglo-Saxon world. Do your duty and do not let your neighbor do your duty for you. Do not ask your canvasser to call twice, but look him up, or come to County Headquarters, or to your bank, and get your Victory Bond. One in every thirty of the population of the County have subscribed. Get interested. Get your neighbor interested. Give your children Victory Bonds. Let us make the subscriptions one for every ten of our population. We have total subscriptions already of $450,000. We can make it $600,000 if we will. Let's make assurance doubly sure and buy a Bond.

The report of the Henderson Commission on the investigation by W. F. O'Connor, Cost of Living Commissioner, into packing companies, is out, and shows that the Davies Co. in 1916 made 80 per cent. on its capital.

The jury at Kingston Assizes found in favor of Sister Mary Basil for $24,000 damages—$20,000 against Archbishop Spratt, the Episcopal Corporation of the diocese, Mary Francis Regis, and the Sisters of Charity of the House of Providence, and $4,000 against Dr. Daniel Phelan. She sued for $29,000, alleging attempt at abduction and at placing her in an asylum, also assault and persecution.

WAR MADE THEM RICH.

Pork Packers Got Eighty Per Cent. Profit on Bacon.

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—That the profits made by the William Davies Company, Limited, and Matthews-Blackwell, Limited, more particularly the former, were exceptionally big during the war period and yielded "an extraordinary return upon the capital invested" is the most important statement made in the report of the commission appointed to investigate further the businesses of these two companies.

The commission, which consisted of G. F. Henderson, K.C., chairman, and Messrs. A. B. Brodie and G. F. Clarkson, has made a unanimous report to Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor. This report, after being under review by a sub-committee of the Cabinet, of which Hon. N. W. Rowell, president of the Privy Council, is chairman, has been made public in its entirety. Incidentally it is pointed out that owing to the action taken by the Government recently, it will be impossible in the future for packing companies to make excessive profits. Under the terms of the order-in-Council packers in future can make by way of profit a maximum of 7 per cent. only. They can retain 7 per cent. clear and one-half of their earnings on the money invested between 7 and 15 per cent. Above 15 per cent. all profits are confiscated.

Profits made, according to the report of the commission, ran as high as eighty per cent. on the money invested. This profit was made by the William Davies Company during the year 1916.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.
 Winnipeg, Nov. 19.—There was a very poor demand in the cash market for all coarse grains today, and the volume of business was light. The wheat situation was unchanged.
 The cash market in futures opened weak and made further declines during the day in December and May deliveries, while November held comparatively steady. The cause of the depression was attributed to a pronounced falling off in the demand for cash oats. Flax futures opened $\frac{1}{4}$ c lower to $\frac{1}{2}$ c up, and further weakness occurred later. There was light business in this market.
 Winnipeg oats future closed $\frac{1}{4}$ c lower for November, $\frac{1}{2}$ c lower for December, and May.
 Barley closed $\frac{1}{2}$ c lower for November, and $\frac{1}{2}$ c lower for May. Flax closed $\frac{1}{2}$ lower for November. December closed $\frac{1}{4}$ c higher, and May closed unchanged.
EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.
 East Buffalo, Nov. 19.—Cattle—Recepts, 5400. Strong; prime steers, $13 to $13.50; shipping steers, $11.50 to $12.50; butchers, $12.50 to $13; yearlings, $11.50 to $13; heifers, $7 to $11.25; cows, $4 to $18;
 stockers and feeders, $6.50 to $11; bulls, $6.75 to $9.75; fresh cows and springers, active, $50 to $140.

Unpleasant War Bread.
 Reports of illness through eating war bread are being received from all over the country, and the news that Lord Rhonda has instituted an inquiry into the cause will come as a relief to many. The bread is said to have given rise to digestive troubles and then eruptions in many districts. This is said to be due to the fact that some bakers are using imported flour that contains beans and rice—ingredients which are quite unfit for bread making. The inclusion of the germ sets free a large percentage of fat, which is unsuitable for weak digestions. Then, of course, regulation flour does not possess the keeping properties which wheaten flour does, and this fact again gives rise to disorders. The grey loaf can never be as palatable as the white one, but it can be made equally digestible and nourishing if the necessary precautions are taken.
 Still, English bread of to-day with all its defects, is not as bad as that which the Parisians had to satisfy their hunger with at the time of the siege of Paris, when a quantity of straw was mixed with the flour in order to help eke out the supplies of grain.

Taxing Young Bachelors.
 Australia may have failed to put conscription into effect, but it has never failed to share the burden of the war. Its contribution is beyond calculation, both in men and in material. Now it intends that the weight shall not fall entirely on the shoulders of the willing, so it has ordered a tax of 10 per cent. to be placed on the taxable income of all unmarried men who are eligible for service in the ranks. This is only fair to the men who are fighting the battle to keep the enemy from the shores of the Commonwealth. Those who have the benefit of the music should help to pay the piper.

LOYAL TO THE FLAG.

Zealous Soldier Shot Down Emblem on Schoolhouse.

A news item to the effect that at Marcelin, Sask., on the public school of that place, the Union Jack had been supplanted by the Papal flag, under orders from the local priest, made such an impression on Private Alfred W. Wilson, of Hamilton, that he disposed of his cafe, and with the proceeds journeyed to the scene of the alleged incident, where his actions in shooting down the school flagpole caused him to be arrested and sentenced to six months' imprisonment in Prince Albert jail by the presiding magistrate.

Wilson was formerly a plumber and steamfitter in Hamilton, having a prosperous business. He is an Englishman and has always been extremely loyal and patriotic. When the 86th Machine Gun Battalion was organized in Hamilton he was among the first to enlist, under the late Lieut.-Col. Stewart, who lost his life in France.

When in camp Wilson was seized with a stroke of partial paralysis which affected his right arm and leg, and also made his speech at times unintelligible, and reduced his mental capacity. He was accordingly discharged from the unit, and as his disability had arisen when on active service he was awarded a pension of $16 a month. Wilson received his discharge on July 28th. In August his condition had not altered, but his medical advisers then were of opinion that he would improve.

It was in this weakened condition both mentally and physically, that Wilson conceived the idea of inculcating a little respect for the flag, which he concluded had not received due deference in the town of Marcelin, and he made the long trip in the latter part of August, without acquainting his wife of his intention. He has been released from the Prince Albert jail and is at present in the Battleford hospital.

The Great War Veterans of Hamilton are of the opinion that had all the facts and circumstances been properly brought out he would not have been sentenced to a term in the Prince Albert jail, which was no place for a man suffering from a severe attack of paralysis, and hardly in his normal state of mind.

Being 45 years of age, Pte. Wilson felt keenly the way some of the younger men held back from enlisting.

Last fall when he disposed of his business he had printed and placed on the front window of his residence the following striking placard:

"Having enlisted in the 86th M. G. Battalion, I have given up my place of business. Three of my fellows have also enlisted. Last year I met with an accident which kept me back. I was within two or three months of 45 and had to be vaccinated before I could join. It makes my blood boil to see the crowds walking around and taking in the shows, instead of putting on the khaki. There is only one thing for them, and that is conscription. Get busy, for that means you. For the King. 18 to 38."

This card remained in the window until the Military Service bill passed, when it was taken down. Pte. Wilson invested in a gramophone and purchased a lot of patriotic airs, which he produced for the benefit of those passing his house, placing the instrument outside.

His whole energies were devoted to securing recruits. Three of his men are at the front, one has been wounded.

Women to Care for Graves.

About 20 women gardeners, who have been trained at Kew, England, are going to France, where they will take up the duty of tending the graves of British dead soldiers. It is the first contingent, and others will follow.

Naming Hindus.

Hindu babies are named when they are twelve days old, and usually by the mother.

WOMAN AVOIDS OPERATIONS

Medicine Which Made Surgeon's Work Unnecessary

Astoria, N. Y. — "For two years I was feeling ill and took all kinds of tonics. I was getting worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pains in my back and legs. I went to a doctor and he said I must go under the operation, but I would not go. I read the paper at Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it. He said 'I know nothing will help me but this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in a few weeks time I was able to sit down and eat a hearty breakfast with my own hand, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation."

— JOHN A. KOENIG, 502 Flushing Ave., Astoria, N. Y.

Every one dreads the surgeon's knife and the operating table. Sometimes nothing else will do; but many doctors say they are necessary, they are not. Letter after letter comes to the Pinkham Laboratory, telling of operations advised and performed; or, if performed, did not, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used and good health followed.

If you want advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

Must Fulfill Promises.

The British National Amalgamated Union of Shop Assistants have cured a settlement in an important case. A firm promised certain payments to their staff who attested to the colors, but when the payments were claimed by the employees they contended the word "staff" meant only the office and not the general body of employees. The firm's solicitor offered £20 in full settlement, but this was refused, and eventually a settlement was arrived at for £87 10s.

Something New.

Many advertisers are constantly trying to think up "Something New" or "Different" and the results are startling to be sure, but certainly not convincing nor conducive to increase in the business of the advertiser.

The craze for originality is a mistake. People do not care for stunts or mental gymnastics. They do want to know the facts in regard to your business and whether you can offer better prices or better quality than your competitors.

Tell the facts in a straightforward, unassuming manner. You will gain the confidence of your patrons, and you will find that advertising pays abundantly.

"Oleomargarine" And the Law

(3044)
AT THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AT OTTAWA

Tuesday, the 23rd day of October, 1917
Present:

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL IN COUNCIL

WHEREAS attention is drawn to the abnormal demand for butter due to war conditions and to the very great probability that such abnormal demand and consequent high prices will prevail for this product for some time to come;

And whereas it is in the public interest, under the special conditions above named, that other fats should be available in Canada under strict and reasonable conditions as a substitute for butter;

Therefore His Excellency the Governor General in Council, under and in virtue of the provisions of The War Measures Act, 1914, is pleased to make and enact and doth hereby make and enact the following Regulations providing for the importation to Canada and the permitting of the manufacture, sale and possession within Canada of oleomargarine and establishing the conditions of such importation, manufacture, sale and possession, such regulations to be in force and to have effect for the period during which the present abnormal conditions continue, the conclusion of such period to be determined by His Excellency the Governor General in Council, as provided in the said regulations, and as a war measure only.

REGULATIONS

1. On and after the first day of November, 1917, and until the Governor in Council has by order declared that the present abnormal conditions have ceased, paragraph (a) of section 5 of The Dairy and Industry Act, 1914, Statutes of 1914, chapter seven, shall be suspended in so far as it provides that no person shall manufacture, import into Canada, or offer, sell or have in his possession for sale, any oleomargarine as hereinafter defined, and the importation, manufacture, offering for sale and having in possession for sale of any such oleomargarine shall be permitted, subject, however, to the rules and regulations hereinafter set out.

2. For the purposes of these regulations "oleomargarine" shall mean and include oleomargarine, margarine, butterine, or any other substitute for butter which is manufactured wholly or in part from any fat other than that from milk and cream, which contains no foreign coloring matter and which does not contain more than sixteen per cent. of water.

3. No person shall import or manufacture oleomargarine without having first obtained a license from the Food Controller for Canada, such license may at any time be cancelled by the Food Controller for the violation of any of the provisions of these regulations or of any other regulation made by His Excellency the Governor General in Council or by the Food Controller.

4. No oleomargarine shall be manufactured in Canada unless it has been manufactured under the supervision of the Minister of Agriculture of Canada, and no oleomargarine shall be imported into Canada unless it has been manufactured under Government supervision in the country of production and is accompanied by satisfactory evidence of such supervision.

5. Oleomargarine shall not be manufactured in any premises used as or may at any time be cancelled by the Food Controller for the violation of any of the provisions of these regulations or of any other regulation made by His Excellency the Governor General in Council or by the Food Controller.

4. No oleomargarine shall be manufactured in Canada unless it has been manufactured under the supervision of the Minister of Agriculture of Canada, and no oleomargarine shall be imported into Canada unless it has been manufactured under Government supervision in the country of production and is accompanied by satisfactory evidence of such supervision.

5. Oleomargarine shall not be manufactured in any premises used as or connected with a butter factory, and no butter manufacturer or any person who handles butter for the purpose of re-working or mixing it shall be given a license to import or to manufacture oleomargarine.

6. No preservative shall be used for or in oleomargarine except salt without the written permission of the Food Controller.

7. No person other than a manufacturer of oleomargarine shall mix oleomargarine and butter.

8. Every person who either imports or manufactures oleomargarine shall keep a book in which is entered the date of each importation, purchase, sale and shipment of oleomargarine, and the quantity so imported, sold or shipped, the person from or to whom it has been purchased, sold or shipped, the place from, in or to which it was imported, sold or shipped, and the name of the railway or steamship company by which such oleomargarine was transported; and such book shall be at all times open for inspection by the Food Controller or any person authorized by the Food Controller to examine the same.

9. The Food Controller shall have power from time to time to regulate the price of all oleomargarine sold in Canada, and may determine the price with respect not only to the quality of the oleomargarine but also to the place in which it is sold.

10. Every package open or closed and containing oleomargarine must be durably and clearly marked "Oleomargarine" on the top, bottom and sides of the package itself in printed letters not less than three-quarters of an inch square; and if such oleomargarine is exposed for sale by retail there must be attached to each parcel thereof exposed, in such manner as to be clearly visible to purchasers, a label marked "oleomargarine" in printed capital letters not less than one-half inch square.

(2) Every person selling oleomargarine by retail in packages other than packages so marked shall, in every case deliver the same to the purchaser in a paper wrapper on which is printed in capital block letters not less than half an inch long and distinctly legible the word "Oleomargarine." No other printed matter shall appear on the label.

(3) In all hotels, restaurants and public eating houses where oleomargarine is served there shall be prominently displayed in some conspicuous place a placard containing the words: "oleomargarine served here," in capital block letters, not less than one and one half inches long.

(4) No label, placard or brand shall be used until it has been approved of by the Food Controller.

11. There shall be no customs duty charged on the importation of any oleomargarine into Canada that complies with the above regulations.

12. Any person violating any of the above regulations shall be guilty of an offense and shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or to both fine and imprisonment.

BY-LAW NO. 632.

A By-law to regulate the banking of the Corporation of the Township of Richmond. Passed 4th day of June, A.D., 1917.

The Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Township of Richmond enacts as follows:

1. That all moneys belonging to said corporation shall forthwith upon the receipt thereof by the Treasurer be deposited by him in the Branch of the Northern Crown Bank at Napanee, in the name of the corporation of the Township of Richmond.

2. That all cheques issued by the corporation of the Township of Richmond shall be made payable to the order of the Payee and shall be signed by the Treasurer of said corporation and shall be countersigned by the Reeve of said corporation or by such member of the Council of said corporation as may be authorized by resolution of said Council to countersign the same. But said Bank shall not be authorized to honour any cheque countersigned by any member of said Council other than the Reeve until a certified copy of the resolution authorizing such other member of the Council to countersign the same shall have been deposited with said Bank.

3. That no cheque of said corporation shall be valued nor shall said Bank honour the same unless it be signed and countersigned in accordance with the provisions of this By-law.

FIVE FUNERALS IN THREE YEARS

Family Almost Wiped Out By Consumption.

From a hovel in the rear of more pretentious buildings comes a ghastly tale, one that in this fair Province of ours seems almost incredible; yet, to those who know the ravages of consumption, it is but a typical case.

Grief stricken, the mother tells us of her five small children buried from this lowly home during the past three years, of her only remaining child, suffering from a tuberculous hip, and then as though in mockery of their misery, the father, too, was stricken. He is now a patient at the Muskoka Free Hospital, where every endeavour is being made to save his life. The Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives is appealing for help to carry on this fight against the Great White Plague. The money you give will help them seek out these unfortunate families and give them a fighting chance for their lives.

Contributions may be sent to W. J. Gage, Chairman, 84 Spadina Avenue, Toronto, or Geo. A. Reid, Secretary-Treasurer, 223 College St. Toronto.

Trade Expansion in Guiana.

The import and export trade of British Guiana in 1915 was valued at $24,810,668, compared with $20,256,237 in 1914, an increase of 22 1/2 per cent. Both imports and exports contributed to this substantial gain in the colony's trade, the former amounting to $8,796,247, an increase of $1,130,717, and the latter to $16,014,421, a gain of $3,422,714, or over 27 per cent. The growth of the export trade has been steady since 1912. In 1913 the increase was 22 per cent., in 1914, 20 per cent.; and in 1915, 27 per cent.

"Vermin Fences."

The state of South Australia has, since 1891, erected 29,148 miles of "vermin fences," enough to encircle the globe and with the remnant build a double line of fence along the southern border of the United States. When contracts now running are completed the mileage will be much increased. New South Wales has spent more than $27,000,000 for rabbit extermination and has within its borders 98,000 miles of fence.

A Matter of Choice

If you are a lover of six-cylinder performance, or if your choice is a car equipped with a tried and true four-cylinder engine, you will do well to look into the merits of the Overland Model Eighty-Five.

This is the popular model that is built in both motor designs—either a Four or a Six.

Both are big, comfortable cars. The Four has a wheelbase of 112 inches—the Six 116 inches.

Both are beauties in appearance and in action. Cantilever rear springs and big roomy seats afford solid riding comfort for five people.

If you have decided to invest in a moderately priced, real family car—one that will stand up under steady service—drop in and ask for a demonstration of this Model Eighty-Five.

WILTON ITEMS.

We are enjoying very pleasant October weather in November. There seems to be a decided change to-day much colder with some flurries.

Farmers are very busy clover dressing, which was a very good crop. Next will be hay pressing. There seems to be abundance of it around here, prices are low.

Our young men have been answering to their call at the different Tribunal Boards, and as they were farmers sons, and while they were patriotic and loyal to their country they are doing their bit in tilling the soil and providing for the boys at the front, their exemptions were granted.

A returned Missionary Lady from Formosa, gave a very interesting discourse on Missionary work in the Presbyterian Church Sunday evening. The P.E.E. Society held their first meeting for the winter Friday evening, the 7th December, come one and all.

The remains of the late Robert Reid, Lapum, were placed in Wilton Vault on Saturday.

The (Rev.) Mrs. Stocker, who has been critically ill from blood poisoning, is improving slowly.

Ross Peters and son, Carman, have returned from their hunting trip in the north, each bring their complement, two fine deer.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Burt and Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Simmons spent a week in Watertown with friends. Mr. Simmons on returning home was surprised to learn one of his best horses had its leg broken and had to be shot while away.

Mr. Lakins, of Verona, has been at R. N. Lapum's, making some improvements in their dining room.

Mr. James Lewis is suffering from a slight shock.

A number from this place are attending the services at Yarker, conducted by the Rev. Sharpe, evangelist.

Mrs. Bowman and daughter's are visiting at Arthur Davidson's.

The Red Cross Society

Many letters have been received this week from boys overseas, thanking the Society for the Christmas stockings, and saying that the parcels were greatly appreciated.

A donation from Mrs. E. M. Briscoe is kindly given, to buy a Christmas dinner for the Prisoner-of-war, whom she has been adopting. It is a great satisfaction to receive again, regularly, the Report Post Cards from Prisoners in Germany, as to the safe arrival of parcels. One letter reads: "Please accept thanks on behalf of myself and comrades in the Prison Camp here, for the help rendered by your Society, in the supply of food, without which we could not exist. I might state that we are receiving your parcels regularly and in good condition, the contents of which are most nourishing."

In replying to the Annual Report sent to Headquarters, Lt. Colonel Marshall paid a high tribute to the Red Cross for the assistance given during the past year. The credit is due however, not only to the workers in Napanee but to those throughout the County who spend their spare time sewing and knitting for the Napanee Branch. The Society feel deeply indebted to the workers of Hayburn, Grætna, Sillsville, Roblin, Hay Bay, Hawley and to the Woman's In-

YOUR CORNS

OFF WITH FINGER

Tells how to loosen a tender or callus so it lifts out without pain.

You reckless men and women are pestered with corns and who at least once a week invited to a death from lockjaw or blood po are now told by a Cincinnati auth to use a drug called freezone, w the moment a few drops are ap to any corn or callus the soreness i lieved and soon the entire corn o lus, root and all, lifts off with the gers.

Freezone dries the moment it is plied, and simply shrivels the corn o lus without inflaming or even irrits the surrounding tissue or skin. A s bottle of freezone will cost very l at any of the drug stores, but will tively rid one's feet of every har soft corn or hardened callus. If druggist hasn't any freezone he ca it at any wholesale drug house for

EMERALD.

The fine weather during the past week has been a great help to the farmers in their plowing, a number of them being nearly through.

The missionary collectors of the Presbyterian church are making their annual rounds.

The Rideau Queen took a cargo of apples from here this morning.

Mr. McEwen, cheesemaker, is moving to Westbrooke before the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wemphave gone to Amsterdam, N.Y., to visit their daughter, Mrs. Lansing.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sargent and Harry Reid, of Kingston, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Reid.

Samuel Reid is visiting his brother, Alexander Reid.

Miss Edna Fowler has gone to spend the winter with her brother, Charles Fowler.

Mrs. James McKee has returned home from visiting friends.

REBELGIAN RELIEF COMMITTEE

The Executive and members of the above Committee feel greatly encouraged by the splendid response made by the public and individuals to the appeal recently launched. The Collectors were most kindly received and substantial results achieved by their canvass. Mrs. W. C. Smith has most kindly adopted a Belgian girl for six months, at the rate of $3.70 per month.
 Some other very generous donations of varying sums have been received with satisfaction and gratitude by the Committee, which desires to acknowledge with many thanks a cheque for $5.00 from Mrs. Alpine Woods on behalf of the local Canadian Red Cross Society.

Mrs. Jas. Douglas' class of young girls have very kindly decided to make an outfit for a Belgian girl of 14 years of age, and to maintain her for a time.

Mrs. Dickinson's classes are progressing finely with Belgian layettes, and expect to have seven outfits ready shortly.

Every member of the U.E.L. Chapter, and our several Committees are asked to reserve the 10th and 11th
 December for the new war pictures to be shown under our auspices at Wonderland on those dates to aid in our war work, and the Dominion Patriotic Fund. See another column re notice. Anyone having donation of clothing in good condition for the French or Belgians, in sizes for infants, children, men and women, kindly send to our work-room on Thursday afternoons, clearly marked for which nation it is intended, and with name of donor.

Do not forget our work-meetings on Thursday afternoons until 5.30 o'clock in the Harshaw Block.

A report of our recent very successful Euchre party appears elsewhere in this issue.

THE CAMPAIGN

The campaign of the Independent Liberal Candidate has started with swing-of-victory impetus. Comtees are organized in every poll sub-division and are working enthusiastically and constantly. Beh the candidate is a solid front of berals with scores of Conservati openly declaring that "it is time a change." In twenty years there not been as great a confidence sh in Lennox and Addington in the suit of an election.

Mr. Grange, three weeks ago,

 It is estimated that there will be men's votes cast. As soon as a of the women eleccors can be c fairly and fully before them.

Mr. Grange spent this week the northern part of the riding dressing public meeting at Dent and Flinton. Mr. Paul is devoting attention at present to a pers canvass of the southern end of County.

YOUR CORNS OFF WITH FINGERS

How to loosen a tender corn or callus so it lifts out without pain.

You reckless men and women who pestered with corns and who have least once a week invited an awful th from lockjaw or blood poison now told by a Cincinnati authority use a drug called freezone, which at a moment a few drops are applied any corn or callus the soreness is removed and soon the entire corn or callus root and all, lifts off with the finger. Freezone dries the moment it is applied, and simply shrivels the corn or callus without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. A small tile of freezone will cost very little any of the drug stores, but will positively rid one's feet of every hard or corn or hardened callus. If your doctor hasn't any freezone he can get at any wholesale drug house for you.

MARRIED MEN WILL COME UP FEBRUARY

The authority of Judge Winches-class two, composed of men who come of age since Oct. 13 and married men with or without families, between the ages of 20 and 34, be called to the colors in February. The judge made this announcement Tuesday when Lawrie G. Taylor, 40 Fernwood Park, a cutter for Bond Brothers, lied for exemption on the ground domestic obligations and was placed in the married men's class. "You better cut your cloth according to the judge advised. is considered very doubtful among Military men that the government will be able to obtain the necessary 100,000 men from the first class, the very perceptible tightening the number of applications for exemption granted. There is also a position on the part of the military representatives at the tribunals a man has been placed in E class but looks physically fit, to ask to be returned to the mobilization centre for re-examination. In several cases men who were formerly in E class have returned to tribunals designated as fit for the colors.

GRANGE'S NOMINATORS

TWO YEARS IN BED AND ROLLING CHAIR

Mrs. Wilson Gave Up Hope—Gains 25 Pounds On Tanlac And is Now A Well Woman.

"For two years I spent all my time either in the hospital, in bed, or in a rolling chair, and during that time I was given up to die, and I don't guess I would be here now if it hadn't been for Tanlac," said Mrs. E. O. Wilson. Mrs. Wilson is well-known in Atlantic, Ga., her husband having been employed by The Constitution, one of the leading newspapers of the United States, for a number of years.

"I was a great sufferer from chronic indigestion," continued Mrs. Wilson, "and don't guess anybody ever had to go through with what I did. I was very weak and nervous, and at times had those dreadful smothering sensations to the point of fainting. I had dreadful headaches, severe pains in my back and over my kidneys and my joints ached all the time. For two years I had to live entirely on boiled milk, toast and soft boiled eggs, and even that didn't digest well, and would sour on my stomach. I didn't know what it was to get a good night's sleep. I took one kind of medicine after another until our house was almost filled with empty bottles, but instead of improving I was getting worse all the time. Finally they took me to the hospital for treatment, and I lay there for five long months, but even that didn't make me well. It was taking nearly every cent of my husband's wages to pay my doctor and drug bills—our drug bill alone amounted to $14 or $15 a month, and one doctor bill amounted to $108.

"It looked like everything had failed to help me, and I had about given up all hope when one day my husband brought a bottle of Tanlac home with him and asked me to take it. He said he had been reading and hearing a lot of good things about it, and didn't see any reason why it shouldn't help me. I was confined to my rolling chair when I began taking it.

"Do I look like an invalid now? I certainly don't feel like one, and I have actually gained twenty-five (25) pounds on eleven bottles of Tanlac, and feel as well as I ever did in my life. I can eat anything I want—such things as meat, turnips, hard-boiled eggs don't hurt me a particle, and I sleep as good as I did when a girl in my teens. I can get about as well as anybody and just the other day I walked down town, and I am running around the neighborhood calling on my friends nearly all the time now. I haven't a pain about me. I believe I am the happiest woman in Atlantic, and I think I have a right to be. I think my recovery is almost a miracle, and every body in our neighborhood thinks the same."

Tanlac is sold in Napanee at WAL-LACE'S Drug Store.

THE SAD STORY OF THE STRUGGLE FOR LIFE

is frequently revealed in these war times even in this well-to-do Province. Hard enough to be poor—still worse to be sick and poor.

The lot of the consumptive is a specially trying one. Only recently, a family was discovered living in two small rooms over a store. At one time they had occupied a comfortable home but the father took sick and had to give up work. With the savings all gone, they were forced to sell the furniture to buy food. When the man was found to be a consumptive, this was the opportunity of the Muskoka Free Hospital to bring relief so that not only would the stricken husband have a winning chance for life, but more desirable still, the wife and children should be removed from danger of contracting the disease. Under skilful guidance the home was cleaned up and the family temporarily provided for. It is now reported that the patient is doing well, with every chance of recovery.

This is the great work carried on by the Muskoka Free Hospital which is now appealing for help.

Contributions may be sent to W. J. Gage, Chairman, 84 Spadina Avenue, Toronto, or Geo. A. Reid, Secretary-Treasurer, 223 College St., Toronto.

"UNIONISM"

LOCAL EXPERIENCE DOES NOT STRENGTHEN BELIEF IN SIR ROBERT BORDEN'S SINCERITY.

There is little "Unionism" about the attitude assumed by the Government and by the Conservative Candidate in regard to the election contest in Lennox and Addington.

On October 22nd, Mr. Grange addressed a letter to Mr. Paul suggesting that National Service be put before party politics and that an honest effort be attempted to secure a local application of the union principle through the mutual withdrawal of both the nominated party candidates on the understanding that an endeavor be made to unite on one win-the-war candidate satisfactory to both parties. That was in line with the specific request of the Union Government and was a fair and patriotic offer. To that offer there has not been even the courtesy of a reply. Yet Sir Robert Borden, ignoring his Government's own avowed policy, has endorsed Mr. Paul as the Union Government Candidate.

The enumerators appointed under the War-Time-Election Act, to make new lists for the election, striking off the names of those of alien enemy birth and adding the names of the overseas soldiers female relatives, are all straight Conservatives and party workers. No Liberal need apply. The appointments were made on the recommendation of the Conservative Candidate. Apparently no heed was paid to the Prime Minister's own request that in the appointment of enumerators fair representation should be given to both parties. Mr. Grange made formal protest both here and at Ottawa but to no avail. Some of the enumerators are known to be using the opportunity of their position to actively canvass for votes for Mr. Paul.

Despite all this evidence of straight partyism on the part of the Conservative Candidate, and despite the attitude assumed from the first by Mr. Grange, two ministers of the Crown, Sir George Foster and Hon. Hugh Guthrie, are advertised to speak in Napanee for the "Union" Candidate and against the Independent Liberal Candidate.

Under all the circumstances it is a little wonder that the electors are suspecting the bona fides of the "Union" and "Win-the-War" pose and are demanding more honesty and fair play.

It may be noted that the last time Sir George Foster was billed to speak at Napanee was in connection with a recruiting meeting in the Armouries in September, 1915. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, although seriously ill at the time, kept his engagement and made a recruiting speech. Sir George Foster got on the wrong train and failed to appear.

Sir Robert Borden has formally endorsed Mr. Paul as the Government Candidate. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has endorsed Mr. Grange as the opposition Candidate although differing to some extent with him on the conscription issue. In a letter to Mr. Grange Sir Wilfrid concludes as follows:—"Go forward, let conscriptionists and anti-conscriptionists rally around you and help win the war by winning the election."

Fighting Qualities of Our Boys Much Admired.

French correspondents with the British troops have been lavish in their praise of the Canadians and their fighting at Lens. One of the most influential of the French Provincial papers is "Le Telegramme," published at Boulogne, and the following literal translation, without comment, of an article on August 25, speaks for itself. It says:

"The Canadians at the present time completely hold the limelight in the theatre of war. It is these picked troops that have been given the incomparable, the glorious and difficult task of retaking Lens — Lens, where each house is a fortress; Lens and its slag heaps bristling with machine-gun and trenches, which the enemy only manage to hold by continual reinforcement.

"This Canadian army, although only raised during the war, is curious to study for several reasons. Recruited exclusively by voluntary methods, it is composed of various elements curiously representing the world crusade against the abhorred Germans.

"One meets trappers, colonials, hunters, men who have lived full lives of adventure, and peaceful merchants of Quebec or Montreal. There are battalions that speak only the true French of the eighteenth century. Some have names like "Gros Rene," others "Oeil de Faucon," and all these various elements are assimilated in the great British army, respecifier of the traditions of others." These trappers, these hunters, these woodsmen, trained to stand the limit of fatigue by their hard life, are the ideal soldiers. They keep themselves in condition, even when they are in rest, by their games and sports, which they practise with fury, but with method. Football and baseball, which they excel in, make them grenade-throwers of the finest class. They can jump in their competitions five feet six inches, and when the time comes they can do the same in combat. They have not abandoned their national game of lacrosse, where these talents are necessary.

"There is one part of the Canadian army which is made up of foresters, who are actually working in Britain and France with their own machinery. They can, it is well known, cut down a forest in the twinkling of an eye (clin d'oeil). You have to admire their marvellous cutting while you sigh for our poor trees, sacrificed in this way for the country's cause. It would take several columns of this paper to relate the splendid deeds of these adventurous and heroic men."

Unexplored Quebec.

It is estimated that in the north of the province of Quebec there are still two hundred and fifty-nine thousand square miles of unexplored country, making, with the six hundred and forty-two thousand square miles in Western Canada, a total of nine hundred and one thousand square miles. In other words, twenty-eight per cent. of Canada is still unexplored. In the basin of the River Mackenzie there are believed to be great petroleum wells. Natives state that they have seen lakes at the Yukon, from sixty to seventy miles long, that have not been seen by white men. The Mackenzie Mountains no one, not even the Indians, knows anything of.

SAYS LEMON JUICE

WILL REMOVE FRECKLES

Girls! Make this cheap beauty lotion to clear and whiten your skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft, and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

SISTER WINS HER ACTION.

Kingston, Nov. 18.—After being out for two hours and a half the jury in the case of Sister Mary Basil vs. Archbishop Spratt et al. brought in a verdict at 11.45 o'clock Saturday night in favor of plaintiff for the sum of $24,000, assessed as follows: $20,000 against Archbishop Spratt, the Episcopal Corporation of the Diocese of Kingston, Mary Francis Regis, and the Sisters of Charity of the House of Providence, and $4,000 against Dr. Daniel Phelan. Plaintiff sued for $29,000, alleging an attempt to abduct her and place her in an asylum in Montreal, and also assault and persecution, and after being a member of the Sisters of Charity for twenty-nine years, she claimed she was unable to return and in her declining years she was left penniless and unprovided for.

Victory Hog Campaign

The Victory Hog Campaign is off to a splendid start. A county meeting of representative farmers was held in the Agricultural Office last Saturday, Nov. 17th, and it was decided to organize each township. Fifteen delegates from each township were appointed and requested to meet at their township meeting to organize the township.

The first meeting was held at Odessa on Wednesday evening, Nov. 21st, and unanimously adopted the plan to take a complete hog census of the township. Three farmers volunteered to take a part of each concession, and were supplied with blanks to report on.

VICTORY HOG CAMPAIGN.

How many sows are you keeping.....
 (a) Old brood sows.....
 (b) Young brood sows.....
 How many are bred.....
 Have you any difficulty in obtaining service of boars.....
 Are you keeping an extra brood sow, or sows, more than last year.....
 How many extra.....
 If not, will you promise to keep at least one extra brood sow, or sows, to help this Victory Hog Campaign.....
 Do you wish to buy young brood sows.....
 How many young brood sows have you for sale.....
 How many pigs are you feeding over winter.....
 How many more than last winter.....
 Name of farmer.....
 Lot.....Con..... R.R. No.....
 Township..... P.O.....

These forms are to be returned by Dec. 1st, or as soon after as possible to Mr. G. B. Curran, at Napanee, the results tabulated, and a complete report of actual conditions published.

A similar census is being undertaken in every township and county in Ontario, and campaigns are also being undertaken in all the Canadian Provinces. The United States Government is also conducting a similar campaign in every state, so that this Hog Campaign covers America. Each farmer is asked to do his share, and if every farmer does a little, the aggregate will be enormous.

The slogans of every patriotic farmer should be "Save the Brood Sows," "Breed one More Sow," "Feed More Hogs."

Soldier of Fortune — by Randall Parrish

Copyright, 1912, by A. C. McClurg & Co.

I wondered which of these others might be hers and passed silently from door to door, vaguely hoping for some sign of guidance. They were all tightly closed, and I dare not try the locks, as I was certain one, at least, of the under officers would be sleeping below. My round had brought me to the second door on the port side when in the dim light I perceived something lying at my feet and stooped down to better determine its character. It was the end of a very narrow light blue ribbon, apparently caught beneath the door. The door was numbered "5." Whether by accident or design, she had left the one clew I most needed. I thrust it into my pocket, but the soft touch of the silk seemed to bring back to me a sense of caution. I knew the door was locked and assured myself there was no space beneath. If I was to communicate with her other means must be employed. What? This was the second stateroom on the port side. Judging from my own, the width of each room would be about six feet. There ought to be no difficulty in locating her porthole from the deck above nor in attracting her attention.

The one thing I desired now was to re-establish myself fully in her confidence, assure her I was at liberty on board, able and willing to be of service. This necessity overshadowed everything else. If I could discover means of communication we could plan hopefully, assured of co-operation. This seemed possible, the way to its accomplishment open. Shadowed from observation by the thick butt of the after mast, I wrote a few lines hastily on the back of an envelope, thrust it into my pocket and ventured up the companion stairs.

A glance sufficed to convince that I was alone and unobserved. The deck was unobstructed aft, except for a small boat swung to davits astern and the cabin transoms. These last were elevated some three feet, but considerable space separated from the rail. I slipped into this opening on the port side, crouching in the dense shadow until again assured I was alone. My position afforded as good a view forward as the darkness would permit and likewise enabled me to see into the dimly lit cabin below. I was not watched or spied upon. For the first time I began to feel free.

With a glance below at the unoccupied cabin I stepped back and paced off the distance until convinced that I had safely located where the porthole of No. 5 should be. I leaned over, seeking to trace its outline by some worthy and capable, and I never interfere. The last voyage I doubt if I was on deck twice, although, of course," he added soberly, "my word goes if I should care to exercise authority."

"What are those lights off yonder?" I asked, pointing.

"Shore lights."

"Then we are steering east?"

"A bit south of east, yes; odd course for Honduras, you think?"

I nodded, willing enough to let him talk.

"We are playing the game safe. Craig; that's all," he explained, both hands gripping the rail. "You see, we cleared for Santiago and are not anxious to be seen and reported by any westbound ships. Tomorrow we will be hidden among the islands off the west Florida coast. Then, as soon as it is dark we will shoot out under full steam into the gulf. The chances are we'll cross the lane unobserved. If we should intercept a liner, she won't identify us in the dark as we turn no lights. By daylight we'll be well beyond their lookouts and can steer a straight course."

The proximity of the man irritated me. I wanted to be alone, where I could think out some feasible scheme of escape.

"I have had enough for tonight," I said finally, "and am going to turn in." "Best thing you can do," he coincided, but without looking toward me. "Will follow suit as soon as I smoke a cigarette. See you tomorrow."

When I awoke the sun was shining through the glass of my porthole, and, glancing forth, I caught the dazzle of the water. The vessel was motionless, apparently riding at anchor, the sea barely rippled by a gentle breeze. The breakfast table was set for one, and the black steward was loitering lazily in a chair. At sight of me he got to his feet.

"Ah suah thought you wasn't nebbber gone ter wake up, sah," he said genially, showing his teeth. "Ah bin waitin' fer yer more'n two hours, Ah reckon."

"For me! Have the others eaten then?"

"Mostly, sah, mostly. De captain he nebbber eat no breakfast. He say et ain't good fer his libber. Yaw, yaw! But de mates dey both bin down."

"What time is it?"

"Most 10, sah."

"Has Mrs. Henley breakfasted yet?" I asked.

"Then you can tell me if he is really Judge Henley's son?"

"Oul, m'sieur; 'tis sure I can. I hav' been with heem there," his brown hand outstretched landward, "where we got you, hey, many the time; besides, the judge he been on zis sheep. Of course he was son; why you think not?"

"I am beginning to believe I do not know very much about it, Broussard," I explained briefly, moving aside to the rail. "I came down south with another story pumped into me, that's all."

"And ze young woman," he persisted, following me closely, "why she come?"

"For the same reason I did."

"More like 'cause she love you, hey! Sacre! She was fine lookin' girl, but"—shrugging his shoulders—"tis the capitaine, not ze mate, who may admire. He is ze capitaine; nobody tell him not on ze Sea Gull."

I left him and walked aft, aware as I turned of the sneer on his face. Yet even then, although burning with anger, I knew better than to remain. I dare not speak the bitter words on my tongue, feeling certain that whatever I said would be repeated to Henley. I knew men well enough to understand the character of the Sea Gull's captain. With unlimited power in his hands he was not an antagonist to be despised. Nor did I doubt his purpose. Now that he had seemingly won me over to his scheme he would turn his attention to her, feeling secure from interference. And he was Judge Henley's son or, at least, so these men believed who had been associated with him for years. The situation grew more and more complicated; it was no longer merely her word against his, and yet I could not doubt the truth of any statement she had made to me.

Broussard stared in my direction for a moment, but made no effort to follow, and finally disappeared forward. There was nothing on sea or land to distract my attention, and I felt that I would be nearer to her below in the cabin than on deck. The skylight was closed, although even then it gave me a partial view, and, as I gazed through the clouded glass I perceived a shadow pass. The next instant the negro steward emerged from the companion. Some swift impulse led me to crouch instantly out of sight, until the sound of his feet on the deck convinced me the fellow was going forward. I watched him cautiously. He stopped twice to glance back, but, perceiving nothing, finally vanished into the fore-cabin.

The negro's going forward left the captain, and Viola Henley alone below. I crept to the door of the companion and then down the stairs.

The main cabin was vacant, but the door of No. 5 stateroom stood slightly ajar. Assured I should find it empty, my heart already beating furiously, I took a swift glance within. It in no way differed from the room which had been assigned me opposite, and everything was in perfect order. Evidently the girl had departed without a struggle, and with full expectation of an early return. Her small handbag lay on the berth attached, and a handkerchief, together with a pair of gloves, were upon the chair. That she had not gone on deck was a certainty, while the deserted cabin led me irresistibly to suspect the captain's quarters. He had dismissed the steward on some excuse, opened her door, and, using some pretense, or authority, had induced her to accompany him. What I could do to help her, to overcome

AUTOINTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

The Dangerous Condition Which Produces Many Well Known Diseases.

HOW TO GUARD AGAINST THIS TROUBLE

"FRUIT-A-LIVES" — The Wonderful Fruit Medicine — will Protect You

Autointoxication means self-poisoning, caused by continuous or partial constipation, or insufficient action of the bowels.

Instead of the refuse matter passing daily from the body, it is absorbed into the blood. As a result, the Kidneys, Skin are overworked, in their effort to rid the blood of this poisoning.

Poisoning of the blood in this way causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Disturbed Stomach. It may induce Headaches and Sleeplessness may irritate the Kidneys and bring Pain in the Back, Rheumatism, and Rheumatic Pains. It is the cause of Eczema — and keeps the system unhealthy by the constant addition to the blood of this refuse matter.

"Fruit-a-lives" will always cure autointoxication or self-poisoning. "Fruit-a-lives" acts gently on bowels and skin, strengthens bowels and tones up the nervous system.

am here under unpleasant circumstances, yet I am not subject to insult. I refuse to answer you a main in your presence." She stood aside, leaving free passage. "You unlock that door."

"Hardly that," and I could see fingers shut down on the top of desk. "It takes more than a few words to change me. Really, I like better than I did. You are decidedly pretty now you are angry. What have I to be afraid of? I am no one but us in this part of ship; I fixed that up before I went to you; even your friend Craig was around somewhere when I'm captain of the Sea Gull, there's not a rascal on board would risk his skull to help you. Craig wouldn't; he even told me self you were nothing to him."

"He—he told you that?"

"He certainly did—in this case. Come, now, what is the use of such a cat? I took a step forward but she never moved."

"Don't touch me," she said in a that stopped him. "I am a woman but I can defend myself."

"That is the worst thing you can threaten me," he said sharply never take that from man or woman. See here! Do you realize where you are—how completely you are in power? The door is locked, and able space separated from the rail. I slipped into this opening on the port side, crouching in the dense shadow, until again assured I was alone. My position afforded as good a view forward as the darkness would permit and likewise enabled me to see into the dimly lit cabin below. I was not watched or spied upon. For the first time I began to feel free.

With a glance below at the unoccupied cabin I stepped back and paced off the distance until convinced that I had safely located where the porthole of No. 5 should be. I leaned over, seeking to trace its outline by some reflection of light from within, but the receding side of the vessel baffled me. Yet, assured that I must be correct in my measurements, I marked the spot on the rail and began search for some means by which I could open communication with the girl below.

The flag locker was astern, and standing on it I could feel inside the boat swung to the davits. It was a small, light boat, fashioned like a cutter, a good seagoing craft for its size. Two oars and a short mast, together with a roll of canvas, were stowed on top of the thwarts and secured by lashings. I cut one of these and drew forth about three fathoms of line, sufficiently pliable for my purpose. The boat hung ready for launching, the falls easily unhooked, and two pair of hands would be sufficient to lower it into the water. There was a locker forward I was unable to reach, but two water kegs, filled, were strapped under the stern sheets, leading me to believe the craft was fully equipped for immediate service. My mind filled with a daring hope by this discovery, I fastened the note to the end of the cord, weighted it with a bunch of keys and crept back to where I had marked the rail. Inch by inch I paid out the line, leaning well over. At last my ears detected the dangling of the metallic keys against the glass, and by manipulating the rope, managed to make them sound with clear insistence. I repeated the effort several times before there was any response. Then the port seemed to be opened cautiously, although no gleam of light shot forth. She had evidently extinguished her lamp before venturing to answer the signal, but I felt her grasp on the cord. Then it was left dangling against the closed port, leaving me to infer that she was reading the hasty note.

My line was again hauled taut, but as I straightened up, prepared to haul up the returning message, I saw the shadow of a man passing across the cabin below. He was already at the foot of the companion stairs; in another minute he would be on deck. There was no time to do otherwise, and I released my grasp of the rope, letting it drop silently into the water. I had barely turned my back to the rail when Henley emerged within six feet of me.

"Who is this? Oh, you, Craig?" he questioned sharply. "Not asleep yet?" "Not even drowsy," I said, pretending an ease I was far from feeling.

"You think favorably of my plan, I hope."

"I see no reason to refuse, if the pay is all right."

"It will be, trust me for that. A beautiful night this—the air as soft as June. I was about to turn in, but decided to take a whiff on deck first."

"Rather a captain's duty, is it not?"

"I believe so, in regular service, but this is decidedly irregular. The fact is, that while I am the owner of this vessel and technically in command, I am no navigator. I merely give my general orders and trust the seamanship to Herman. He is perfectly trust-

"Ah suah thought you wasn't nebbin' goin' ter wake up, sah," he said genially, showing his teeth. "Ah bin waitin' fer yer more'n two hours, Ah reckon."

"For me! Have the others eaten then?"

"Mostly, sah, mostly. De captain he nebbin' eat no breakfast. He say et ain't good fer his libber. Yaw, yaw! But de mates dey both bin down."

"What time is it?"

"Most 10, sah."

"Has Mrs. Henley breakfasted yet?" I asked.

"Who, sah?"

"The lady you have on board."

He scratched the wool on his head vigorously, glancing behind the mast as though uncertain what he had best answer.

"Ah suah nebbin' know'd dat was her name, sah. No, sah, Ah nebbin' done suspected it. Yes, sah, she had her breakfast, but Ah reckon she didn't eat much."

"You served her here at the table?"

"No, sah; in her room, sah," his voice low. "De captain he unlock de doah an' then lock it agin. You like sugah in your coffee, sah?"

I found the after deck entirely deserted, and there was no one visible on the bridge. Two or three sailors, the anchor watch, were forward engaged in some service about the capstan, and a fellow was swabbing the deck amidship. I heard Broussard's voice at a distance, but could not locate him. However, no one paid the slightest attention to me as I stood smoking and gazing curiously around. Everything appeared peaceful enough. We were lying in a small harbor within a hundred feet of the shore. I sauntered forward toward the bridge, aiming to exchange greetings with the creole mate. Broussard was not a man to expect favors from, and I had hated him with the first glimpse of his face, yet he possessed his racial characteristic of impulsive speech and was thus far more approachable than the gruff German first officer. Perhaps if he believed me an accomplice he might be led to talk.

"How you com' on ze deck, m'sieur?" he asked, his eyes threatening. "I thought you down below, locked in all tight," and he waved an expressive hand aft.

CHAPTER XIII.

Tables Turned.

I LAUGHED, but without paying him the compliment of looking at him.

"I've changed allegiance, that's all, Broussard. The captain turned me loose last night."

"You wif us? You go volunteer?"

"Well, something like that. I'm to be drillmaster or general for those tattered battalions down in the jungles. What do you think of the job?"

He shrugged his shoulders and then grinned.

"What ze dif?" and he swept his hands about in expressive gesture. "Sea—land, if only one gets the price, m'sieur. But, for me, I like to go, to move—not lie still an' rot."

"Of course," falling into his mood, "that's in your blood, I reckon. But the captain said we were only to hide here for a day."

"Maybe day, maybe week. No one knows how long. We wait till the sea is clear. Bah! The man 'fraid of shadow. He give me sheep, an' I show heem. He no sailor, m'sieur. I know heem long while."

been assigned me opposite, and everything was in perfect order. Evidently the girl had departed without a struggle, and with full expectation of an early return. Her small handbag lay on the berth unfastened, and a handkerchief, together with a pair of gloves, were upon the chair. That she had not gone on deck was a certainty, while the deserted cabin led me irresistibly to suspect the captain's quarters. He had dismissed the steward on some excuse, opened her door, and, using some pretense, or authority, had induced her to accompany him. What I could do to help her, to overcome him, was not evident. I was alone, unarmed, surrounded by men under his command.

Possibly even now I was under surveillance. The negro had left the cabin, I knew, but where was Herman? Broussard was in charge of the deck, and hence this would be the first mate's watch below. Impressed with this disconcerting thought, I emerged again into the main cabin. The stateroom doors were all closed, and I had to guess which was the German's. I was sure, however, that Broussard occupied the first on the port side. I had heard him open that door while talking to the steward, and it was highly probable the first mate had the apartment opposite. Judging from the position of the doors, these would be larger than the other staterooms, and if Herman was the real navigator of the boat he would require good quarters. I listened at the door, but heard nothing, then, rendered desperate by the delay, tried the knob cautiously. The door was unlocked, opening noiselessly. A glance convinced me the room was unoccupied, and I stepped inside.

Instantly my mind leaped to a conclusion—the first mate was not on board; he was ashore with the boat party, and Henley was entirely alone. He had taken advantage of the opportunity. But what could I do? If I broke down the door into his cabin the noise would be heard on deck, and, besides, the fellow was armed. The only result of such an effort would be my own imprisonment, leaving her in more helpless stress than before. Without knowing why I peered into the bathroom connected with Herman's stateroom. It was small, but perfect in arrangement and, to my surprise, revealed a second door. In an instant I understood—this was not Herman's private bath, but was also used by the captain. That second door led to the after cabin. I was there in two strides, my ear at the crack listening. Nothing reached me but the murmur of a voice, the words indistinguishable, yet this was sufficient to convince me that I was on the right trail. The two were together, and here was an opportunity for me to reach them unobserved. Slowly, using every precaution to avoid noise, I turned the knob and opened the intervening door a scant inch. I caught a glimpse of the interior.

"You have trapped me here—you— you brute!" I heard her say.

"Well, what of it?" insinuatingly. "Why shouldn't it be me, my dear, as well as the other?"

"What do you mean? Do you connect me with Gordon Craig?"

"Of course," and he laughed. "Why shouldn't I, please? You came with him from the north, did you not—traveling as his wife? I happen to know your history."

She took a deep breath, standing straight before him, her cheeks burning.

"Perhaps you think you do," she said, now in full control of herself. "But you are going to learn your mistake. I Craig would not be nothing to him."

"He—he told you that?"

"He certainly did—in this room. Come, now, what is the use of being such a cat?" I took a step forward, but she never moved.

"Don't touch me," she said in a tone that stopped him. "I am a woman but I can defend myself."

"That is the worst thing you can threaten me," he said sharply. "Never take that from man or woman. See here! Do you realize where you are—how completely you are in power? The door is locked, and haven't any weapon. Don't try to fool me!"

"I have told you once," she earnestly, "not to touch me."

"I'll take a chance. You're worth I saw her struggle to break free and then out of the shadow I leapt at him, both hands seeking his throat. There was to be no alarm, no shoot if it could be avoided. The very

Auto-intoxication means self-poisoning, caused by continuous or partial constipation, or insufficient action of the bowels.

Instead of the refuse matter passing freely from the body, it is absorbed by the blood. As a result, the kidneys and liver are overworked, in their efforts to cleanse the blood of this poisoning.

Poisoning of the blood in this way often causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Disturbed Stomach. It may produce Headaches and Sleeplessness. It irritates the kidneys and brings on pain in the Back, Rheumatism, Gout, and Rheumatic Pains. "Hardly that!" and I could see his fingers shut down on the top of the desk. "It takes more than a few words to change me. Really, I like you better than I did. You are decidedly pretty now you are angry. Besides, I have I to be afraid of? There is no one but us in this part of the ship; I fixed that up before I went after you; even your friend Craig is coming around somewhere on deck as captain of the Sea Gull, and there's not a rascal on board who would risk his skull to help you. Even if you wouldn't, he even told me himself you were nothing to him."

"He—he told you that?"

"He certainly did—in this room. Now, what is the use of being so afraid?" He took a step forward, and she never moved.

"Don't touch me," she said in a tone at stopped him. "I am a woman. I can defend myself."

yet forced back, in spite of every effort, inch by inch across the floor, my feet tangled in the rug. Neither could I strike nor kick. I was weaponless, and I dare not release his arms for fear he might possess a gun. But I managed to swing him sideways, the two of us tripping over the chair and coming down heavily on the deck. By some luck I landed on top and before he recovered from the shock had wrenched one arm free, locking my fingers in his throat.

He squirmed under me like an eel, but could not break the grip, his face purpling, until he lost all power. Fierce as the battle had been, I retained sufficient sense to loosen my death grip while the man still breathed, lifting my head sufficiently to glance about. My own breath came in sobs, and the perspiration almost blinded me.

"Bring me something to tie him with," I said brokenly. "Anything; yes, that belt will do."

She tore it from the hook on the wall and thrust it into my hands. With a single movement I had it buckled securely about his arms, and was free to sit up and stare about. A cord from the portiere curtain draping the bathroom entrance completed his lashings.

"By —, Craig," he snarled, "you'll both wish you'd killed me before you're done with this job. What chance have you got to get away?"

"That is for me to decide," I answered. "But if you open your mouth again I'll gag you." Now, stop it. The first word you utter will mean a handkerchief in your mouth."

I stooped down and dragged him to one side. As I straightened up again she was facing me.

"How did you get here?"

"I found my way through the connecting bathroom yonder."

"Then—then, we can escape in the same manner."

"I hardly think that will be necessary. I'll go through our friend's pockets for his keys." I turned him over and began the search. "Ah, a revolver! I thought probable—in protection against a woman, you cur! Here are keys; now let's see what they fit."

The third one tried unlocked the door, but even as I tried them in the lock my mind swiftly reviewed the situation. It must be open war from now on. Henceforward we could expect no mercy on board. Yet how was it possible to escape, or avoid discovery? To attempt leaving the Sea Gull before dark would be suicidal. Yet there was a chance that what had occurred in this cabin could be kept concealed for a few hours; until darkness gave us better opportunity for successful action. The memory of what Henley had said to me the evening before—that he was only technically in command; that for days at a time he never appeared on deck in person, gave me the clue. If he could be kept absolutely secure in his cabin, unable to create any alarm, we would be free to plan our escape. There were but two points of danger to be guarded against—Herman and the steward. The former, when he returned from shore, might seek him for final orders, and the latter, if he failed to appear in the cabin for the regular meal, would endeavor to learn his desires. I would have to guard against these contingencies, and, with the first in mind, I stepped across to the bathroom, and was gratified to learn that the door, leading into the mate's stateroom, could be locked on the inside. With this private approach barred, I felt confident of being able to guard the

Through the clear glass I could see the curve of shore line forming the little cove. Just within the foam of the breakers a half dozen men were launching a small boat. I stared at them an instant before realizing what it meant. Then I dropped the curtain.

"The mate is coming aboard," I said swiftly. "You must go to your room; here is the key; lock yourself in and only open when you hear my voice."

"And you?"

"I must take care of myself; don't worry about me."

Without so much as a glance at our prisoner she opened the door and, with a swift look about the outer cabin, disappeared.

I must keep Henley concealed and silent until darkness rendered our escape possible. In order to accomplish this it would be necessary to prevent either the steward or the mate from entering the after cabin. All peril from the negro I dismissed quickly, confident that his knowledge of my standing on board would impel him to accept any explanation I might make. But Herman the situation was not so clear. "Yes, sah. Shall Ah make you sum coffee, sah? Massa Broussard he don't nebbber drink none."

"Well, what can we do?" she asked when I returned.

"Keep the fellow tied and wait for night," I answered soberly. "That is our only chance. The mate is ashore. We are lying in the cove of a small island off the Florida coast waiting for darkness and a chance to slip through into southern waters."

"Do you know where this boat is bound?"

"Yes; Spanish Honduras. We are loaded with munitions of war," I laughed. "I was to be a general down there. I had to play a part. But you received my note?"

"Yes, and it helped me wonderfully, although even then I scarcely comprehended why all this pretense was necessary. Surely you do not believe this man is Philip Henley, that—that I have told you a lie?"

"No, I do not," I answered earnestly. "But he has shown me evidence of his identity which would have convinced me under other circumstances—letters and pictures. I will show them to you, for I know where they are kept in the desk. No evidence would shake my faith in you, and I am certain now there is fraud here. Some devilish plot concocted to steal Judge Henley's fortune."

"What letters? What pictures were they?"

"Letters from the judge to his son—intimate family letters, and a photograph of the father and this man taken together."

"And were the letters addressed to Philip?"

"The envelopes had been destroyed, and no name was mentioned, but the photograph was indorsed in the judge's handwriting."

CHAPTER XIV.

The Creole's Story.

SHE sank down on a locker and hid her face in her hands. The pitiful dejection in her attitude compelled me to bend over her in quick sympathy.

She looked up into my face. "I am not afraid. Only I cannot bear the thought that you doubt me ever so little. I know I have been indiscreet, that you might justly deem me an adventuress. But I am not, Gordon Craig; I am a good woman left to fight alone, and I must have your faith or break down utterly. Do you believe me—all I have told you—that I am really the wife of Philip Henley?"

"Yes," I answered through clenched teeth, struggling to control myself.

For a moment she sat in silence, and, while I dared not look at her, I knew her eyes were upon my face.

"Then I will do whatever you say, go wherever you tell me," she promised gravely. "I cannot decide for myself. I am too confused to think clearly, but I trust you as a friend."

"I drew aside the curtain draping one of the after ports and glanced out, eager for anything to distract attention.

either the steward or the mate from entering the after cabin. All peril from the negro I dismissed quickly, confident that his knowledge of my standing on board would impel him to accept any explanation I might make. But Herman the situation was not so clear. Whether or not the captain had informed him that I was a volunteer on their lawless expedition I did not know. I had him placed as a gruff, hard fisted sea dog who would strike first and investigate later, one in dealing with whom either diplomacy or force might prove equal failures. Yet I possessed this advantage: I could deal with him alone. With but two watch officers on board only one at a time could leave the deck, and Broussard, I felt assured, had no privileges in the captain's cabin. From what I knew of Henley I doubted if even the first officer felt privileged to invade the privacy of his chief without some special reason. There was discipline on board, strict discipline. There had to be to control such a crew.

As I lifted the helpless captain into his berth, his eyes glaring at me in a potent rage, my ears could distinguish the sound of oars as the small boat rounded the stern of the Sea Gull. Much as I despised the fellow, I hated to gag him, yet our safety depended on his silence, and I dared not neglect the precaution. Even as the boat grated along the side I stepped forth into the main cabin and sat down to wait. To my surprise and relief, it was Broussard who came down the companion stairs, driving the steward before him.

"Vat for you loaf, hey?" he snapped fiercely. "By gar, I teach you! I work four—seek—hour, an' nodding to eat. You say ze capitaine send you? Bah! Eet was not so—nevaire! Vat you have, hey?"

The negro mumbled something through thick lips, and the irate mate gripped him by the collar of his jacket, shaking the fellow as he might a dog and hurling him half across the deck.

"Sacre! I keel you for 5 cent! Queek now—jump! Put all on right way, by gar, or I show you! Here, you—ze brandy fust!"

The steward slunk into the passage leading to the pantry, and the creole, turning, saw me.

"Ah, m'sieur, I saw you not. Pardon ze roughness, but I lose ze temper, m'sieur."

"That is not to be wondered at," I answered, affecting good humor. "Has the first mate been ashore?"

"Yon, m'sieur—asleep in the sun, I bet you! Bah! Any man could watch the sea from the cliff. Dat job not need ze furst officer. Sacre, but 'tis a dog's life at sea!"

I nodded my head, too busily engaged with my own thoughts to give much consideration to his troubles. Still, this situation as revealed by Broussard's complaints would afford us a respite of at least four hours. If this was the creole's watch below, then Herman would keep the deck. Even lying there at anchor those fellows would not leave the crew alone. There was too much at stake, and, besides, there must still remain a lookout ashore. However, it was a relief to know that the German had nothing of importance to communicate to Henley, no occasion even to come below. Broussard sank back into a chair, watching the frightened negro hurry back and forth. At last, satisfied that everything available had been produced, the former strode across to the table, jerked out a chair and waved

"You know ze capitaine before may-be?" Broussard asked.

"No," I answered, wondering what he could be aiming at, but willing to be scale in charge of reliable and "You think so—hey?—an'ter so w. he get you with heem. Den he ze levil. I know, m'sieur. I see heem for long while on ze ocean; zat whar you fin' out."

"By gar! What! Bring up at the recollection. 'Get out o' here, yer coon!' turning fiercely upon the steward, and then leaning across the table, lowering his voice, which yet trembled with passion. 'Sacre, m'sieur, it was I do his dirty work five—seek—year. He no sailor, but I sail ze sheep for him—see? Tree, four time I sail ze sheep, an' he make ze money. Vat he geef me? I shook my head, uncertain just what stand to take.

"Never?" he went on, barely pausing for breath. "I show ze half breed. You see hees mother—she mulatto. Ze dog!"

"How do you know that?" I asked, surprised.

"I listen, I hear ze talk, but I say noddings, m'sieur. Vat I care while he treat me right? But now I show heem vat I know. He not lord eet over me ven ol' Sallie vas his mother—by gar, no!"

"Sallie! You cannot mean that mulatto woman back on the plantation?"

"Sure! The ol' judge vas his father."

The whole thing came to me in a flash as I stared across at the mate, who scarcely realized yet the revelation made. He was brooding over his wrongs and how he was to be avenged.

CALVES ON SEPARATOR MILK

Poor Practice to Pour Liquid Into Dirty Trough and Let Animals Drink Their Fill.

If we are ready to admit that a cow's milk is too good for a cow's calf and that it is economically profitable to rob the future cow for the sake of present gains, then it is quite necessary to know how to raise calves on separator milk or other artificial and unnatural foods, says a writer.

very much in this way, and that also plays its own inimitable part, and there is no mistaking the tremendous liking existing for white fur trimmings. White fur is to be seen on coat after coat, sometimes some superior fur such as white fox or tailless ermine, sometimes some substitute, of which lapin is the fashionable name, but which is, frankly speaking, rabbit.

White or gray lapin, however, is by no manner of means to be despised. It is a fur with which marvels can be wrought. The soft "flat" surface is a delight, and one remarkably becoming.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To stimulate quick increase in the meat supply, the United States department of agriculture will extend throughout the country the pig club which have been operated in 15 states and the poultry clubs which have been operated in nine states. In addition to the 38 specialists in hog production and 39 specialists in poultry production who thus will be placed in the field at once, an additional specialist on hog production will be placed in each of the five principal hog-raising states.

Hogs and poultry have been singled out as the live stock on which special efforts will be concentrated in the campaign for increased meat production because they give the quickest return. The various pig and poultry clubs have already interested in the rearing of these animals large numbers of young people who otherwise would not contribute to an increase in food production.

WEED SEED VERY PROLIFIC

Given Crop Does Not Germinate First Season, But Distributes Germination Over Period.

"One year of seed, seven years of weeds." Weed seeds are produced in great abundance. A given crop of weed seed does not germinate the first season, but distributes its germination over a period of years.

Seeds deep in the soil do not germinate readily because of lack of oxygen and those that do grow exhaust their stored food in the seed before reaching the surface. Seeds may lie buried in the soil for years without losing their power of germinating. Such seeds may germinate readily when brought to the surface.

DETERMINE VALUE OF HORSE

Feed Given Colt for First Eighteen Months Decides to Great Extent Size at Maturity.

The feed a colt gets the first 18 months, and especially the first winter, determines to a great extent the size of the colt at maturity. The size of horse determines its value very largely. Good breeding gives wonderful possibilities, but it takes feeding if these possibilities are to be fully realized.

DAIRY

QUIETNESS OF GREAT VALUE

Something That Should Be Insisted Upon and Rigidly Enforced Among the Dairy Herds.

The value of quietness among the dairy herds is something that should be insisted upon and rigidly enforced. The intruding hunter is fast being kept out by signs to that effect; but even then one or two sometimes get in when no one is looking. A cow usually hates a dog, and her hate is even increased when the dog is noisy or runs at her. She may not get over the agitation for a day or two, and in the meantime the disturbance shows its effect in the milk supply. If the manager of a herd has nothing to offer in the way of kindness or love to his animals he can do infinite harm. He may apparently lose control of himself at times and feel justified in delivering severe beatings; but such actions are not good as an excuse. Forbid any kicks in the bellies or any striking over the rumps or backs with clubs. Cases are on record of serious harm being done to cattle by those who do not take some forethought on how to manage with reason.

AMOUNT OF SALT IN BUTTER

On Every Dairy Farm There Should Be Scale That Will Weigh to Ounce or Finer.

While it may be pardonable to estimate the weight of butter in a churning, which some are able to do with surprising accuracy, it is never a good plan to "guess" at the weight of the salt required for churning. On each and every farm where butter is made there should be a scale that will weigh to ounces or finer and both butter and salt carefully weighed before the latter is added to the former.

The amount of salt to add to butter varies, first, according to the requirements of the market, and, secondly, according to the method of making butter. No butter should contain over about 3 per cent of salt. This is above the maximum that can be properly dissolved in butter. Butter cannot contain more than 16 per cent of the moisture and inasmuch as water is the only dissolving substance in butter it can readily be seen that the amount of salt that will dissolve in butter is limited.

Many thousands in this section would testify as do the following:

St. Catharines, Ont.—"Over forty years ago I was restored to health by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It was after medicine and doctors had failed to help me or give relief. I had, through overwork, become all run-down in health. I was weak and finally became a nervous wreck. The 'Prescription' was recommended to me, and at the time I started to take it I had not been able to do anything for over a year. I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Golden Medical Discovery' as well. It took several bottles, but I was completely restored to good health and since that time when I have felt the need of these medicines I have taken them and always with perfect satisfaction."—MRS. WM. BAKER, 33 Page St.

Stratford, Ont.—I was all run-down, weak, nervous. I also suffered with severe pains through my back. I was very miserable when a friend advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and one bottle seemed to give renewed strength. It stopped the pain in my back, also helped my nervous condition. It is surely a good tonic for women.—MRS. FLORENCE CULLUM, 100 Milton St.

FUR APPEARS ON ALL COATS

In Many Cases It Is Used as a Border Somewhere Around the Hem—White Trimming Popular.

In nearly all the new models an artistic tendency is very apparent. The lines are straight, yet full and loose; there are often large Oriental-shaped armholes, a kind of "shapeless shapeliness" being cleverly imparted.

Another feature is that though the coat itself may not be of fur, fur of some kind enters prominently into its composition. There is, perhaps, a roll-back fur collar, fur cuffs or fur buttons. In many cases there is a border of fur somewhere around the hem, sometimes very narrow, sometimes extending to quite a considerable depth.

Golden-colored raccoon is being used very much in this way, and lynx cat also plays its own inimitable part, and there is no mistaking the tremendous liking existing for white fur trimmings. White fur is to be seen on coat after coat, sometimes some superior fur such as white fox or tallies ermine, sometimes some substitute, of which lapin is the fashionable name, but which is, frankly speaking, rabbit.

White or gray lapin, however, is by no manner of means to be despised. It is a fur with which marvels can be wrought. The soft "flat" surface is a

(6) Don't expect machine sizers to grade for quality—only human hands can grade out the defective tubers.

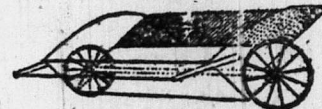

(7) Don't mix No. 1 and No. 2 grade potatoes. There are customers who desire each separately, but do not want them mixed.

Poor Practice to Pour Liquid into Dirty Trough and Let Animals Drink Their Fill.

If we are ready to admit that a cow's milk is too good for a cow's calf and that it is economically profitable to rob the future cow for the sake of present gains, then it is quite necessary to know how to raise calves on separator milk or other artificial and unnatural foods, says a writer.

Hogs and poultry have been singled out as the live stock on which special efforts will be concentrated in the campaign for increased meat production because they give the quickest return. The various pig and poultry clubs have already interested in the rearing these animals large numbers of young people who otherwise would not contribute to an increase in food production.

WEED SEED VERY PROLIF

Given Crop Does Not Germinate First Season, But Distributes Germinating Over Period.

"One year of seed, seven years weeds." Weed seeds are produced in great abundance. A given crop weed seed does not germinate the first season, but distributes its germinating over a period of years.

Seeds deep in the soil do not germinate readily because of lack of oxygen and those that do grow exhaust their stored food in the seed before reaching the surface. Seeds may lie buried in the soil for years without losing their power of germinating. Such seeds do not germinate readily when brought to the surface.

Get Behind the Wheel of a Ford and Drive

TRY it just once! Ask your friend to let you "pilot" his car on an open stretch. You'll like it, and will be surprised how easily the Ford is handled and driven.

If you have never felt the thrill of driving your own car, there is something good in store for you. It is vastly different from just riding—being a passenger. And especially so if you drive a Ford.

Young boys, girls, women and even grandfathers—thousands of them—are driving Ford cars and enjoying it. A Ford stops and starts in traffic with exceptional ease and smoothness, while on country roads and hills its strength and power show to advantage.

Buy a Ford and you will want to be behind "the wheel" constantly.

These are stirring times in the world of buying and selling women's apparel. Contrary to all the expectations of the pessimists and the croaking of the gloomy prophets, there is a scramble for enough merchandise to sell to the women on this continent at this moment. They have money; they want new clothes; Paris has sent alluring costumery quite in keeping with our spirit of war-time dressing; the shops are crowded, and the bulk of the buying has gone to the people who offer clothes that are not eccentric or overpriced.

When fashions are slack, women have time to read about them in detail when they are being rushed across the stage; but now, as in an exciting movie, there is no time for comment

THIS is Thomas A. Edison, who although seventy years of age, is now working eighteen hours a day for his country, without pay or thought of reward.

His work is being done secretly; but it is probably true that the United States is placing more reliance on Mr. Edison than on any other single man except the President.

Mr. Edison is conceded to be the greatest inventor the world has ever known.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul" is Mr. Edison's favorite invention. It is the achievement in which he takes the greatest pride.

Do you believe that there is any other man in the world—or group of men—who could invent as good a phonograph as Mr. Edison's new phonograph?

This wonderful new instrument is built by experts under the direction of technical men in accordance with laboratory standards established by Mr. Edison personally.

Jet buttons will be put on gowns of serge, satin, velvet and velvet. Belts of jet will be used on one-piece frocks for the afternoon. The cadet sash of the hour, which is used on short coats as well as frocks will be weighted with thick jet tassels.

In more ways than anyone could think were possible, gray is mixed with other colors. It is especially effective when placed with subtle shades of blue. Violet, heliotrope, salmon, watermelon pink and flame red are some of the colors which are put with gray gowns to be worn for all hours of the day and evening. Hatter's plush is strongly indorsed by the milliners for women's street hats. It will also be used for the brims of the large picture hats which have collapsible velvet crowns. Fortunately for the majority of women, the bell-shaped hat which was in fashion last summer, will be retained for the winter in this new material.

There is no doubt of the fact that French heels are doomed for street wear, but this does not mean that they will not still be worn indoors. What From Many Garden Vegetables Can Be Saved for Next Year, Such Beans, Peas, Etc.

Many garden vegetables which cannot be used may be allowed to go to seed and the seed saved for next year's planting. This is true of beans, peas, lettuce, radishes, squash, pumpkins, asparagus, spinach, early turnips, etc. Home grown seed which has not mixed is often superior to that bought on the market.

They have money; they want new clothes; Paris has sent alluring costumery quite in keeping with our spirit of war-time dressing; the shops are crowded, and the bulk of the buying has gone to the people who offer clothes that are not eccentric or over-priced.

When fashions are slack, women have time to read about them in detail when they are being rushed across the stage; but now, as in an exciting movie, there is no time for comment or philosophy, for theory or observation. "News! Give us news!" is what the people cry who want to go out tomorrow morning and buy.

This is no time, therefore, to dwell upon one subject and embroider it a bit in an attempt to catch a woman's fancy. There is so much to say that there is not half enough space in which to say it.

A colossal cornucopia of fashions has been shaken out over the heads of women, and one is catching as one can catch here and there. So much is changed, so much that is new is offered, so vast a variety of stimulating and enlivening fashions have fallen from the skies, as it were, that women, ever alert for interesting clothes at this season of the year, are asking a thousand questions and adding more before these are answered.

Under this stimulus, the one who reports fashions must try to meet the situation by turning out the news in that old, old form of journalistic expression known as the reporter's notebook. After a while, affairs will simmer down. They will establish themselves on a sound basis and probably remain on that foundation until next February. However, there is no hope for calm at this moment and therefore, I pour out all the news of the hour in paragraphs. They cover the situation as far as it goes.

High Collars in Blouses.

The strongest evidence that women will wear high collars in the winter, is that they are appearing in the cheap, ready-to-wear blouses. Some of these are boned and fit the neck. Others have a ruffle at the top of the high edge. Neither style is as attractive as the one that flares at the top in the French fashion and envelopes the flesh at the top of the neck instead of pushing it up.

The strong desire shown by the great designers is to follow the lines of the figure in all gowns. This eliminates petticoats in a large measure. When they are worn, they must be exceedingly slim and of soft material.

The tendency toward the directoire gown is more marked as the autumn advances, especially as regards colorful waistcoats that fit the figure.

Kolinsky will hold its place as the leader of peltry this season. It will be lavishly used for trimming street suits. Hudson seal ranks high. Its soft and pliable skin allows it to fit in with the clinging drapery of the year. Manufacturers say there is a strong demand for fine grades of Hudson seal, especially for coats. Straight boxcoats that flare slightly at the hem, will be fashionable.

Jet, in every form, will be acceptable this year. The reopening of the old mines in England, which were once worked by the monks, has given a strong impetus to the trade in black

In more, ways than anyone could think were possible, gray is mixed with other colors. It is especially effective when placed with subtle shades of blue. Violet, heliotrope, salmon, watermelon pink and flame red are some of the colors which are put with gray gowns to be worn for all hours of the day and evening. Gray one-piece frocks for the street, offered as a substitute for tailored suits, have fitted, medieval corselets made of braid.

Careless cravats on the most formal suits, gain in importance. This kind of neckwear started in Paris last May, but the American dressmaker did not take it seriously until the new autumn models arrived.

These cravats are made of the cloth of the suit, lined with a fanciful fabric, or they embody a brilliant color scheme, which has many advantages in that it brightens the suit and often makes it more becoming to the wearer.

So far, the high, stiff, military coat collar has not appeared, but every other kind of collar that mounts to the chin has been employed to supply the demand for high neckwear.

The trench muffler is delighted in by many women, whether it is made of fur or cloth. It almost disguises the face, it envelopes so much of the lower part of it.

Ostrich Plumes Again.

Ostrich plumes are slowly coming back into fashion. Paris provided them for the great middle class of women who suddenly became well-to-do through high salaries. These women believe that sealskin coats, diamond solitaires and ostrich feathers are still the symbols of wealth.

What was true of France quickly became true of England. Although plumes are selling there today at $90 and $100 apiece, because of reduction in supply, there are buyers aplenty for them. It is expected that the industrial condition of America will be the same as that which has prevailed in England and France during the latter part of the war, and that the women, who are the real spenders of a nation, will buy clothes more lavishly and recklessly than they have for a century. The reason for this is that they are taking the places of men and getting money to spend without asking men for it.

As for the ostrich feather in America, it is slowly making its appearance, but it is sponsored by so many good houses that no doubt it will appear summer, still, will be retained for the winter in this new material. (Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Are French Heels Going?

There is no doubt of the fact that French heels are doomed for street wear, but this does not mean that they will not still be worn indoors. French heels were never really intended for walking, and the wonder is that women of good sense and good taste have for so long been willing to follow the vogue for high-heeled walking shoes. The French-heeled shoe undoubtedly gained popularity because of the short skirt, and many persons have predicted that the sensible walking shoe would not return to favor until the short skirt had passed out of fashion. But as indications point now skirts are still to be moderately short, and at the same time women are to wear sensible heels.

From the Trenches.

The following verses gain their chief interest from the fact that they were written by a French-Canadian soldier, Signaller O. Lavoie, No. 145163, of the 87th Battalion, Canadian Infantry. They were composed in captured German dugouts in which Signaller Lavoie was on duty. Signaller Lavoie's mother, Mrs. F. Lavoie, lives at 92 Wellington street, Hull. The author's own title is "Why I, a French-Canadian, Enlisted." Having learned through the columns of The Soldiers' Gazette of the keen solicitude felt by its publishers, the Queen Mary's Needlework Guild, in all matters pertaining to the lads at the front, Signaller Lavoie forwarded the verses to the Guild's headquarters in Montreal, with the suggestion that they might be published in pamphlet form and sold for the benefit of the Red Cross or some other patriotic object. The verses follow:

You ask me why I enlisted,
And why did I go to war?
Just listen, I'll tell a story
Perhaps you have heard before.
I ain't no blooming hero—
A corporal or a lance;
I'm just a paltry signaller
Doing my bit in France.
I was just an operator
And had to work at night,
And when this war was started
It made me want to fight.
I heard of Germans in Belgium,
And the horrible deeds they'd done;
My blood ran cold with horror
At what they called "great fun."

The way they treated the mothers,
And the little children, too.
It made me join the colors
Determined to see it through.
For it's up to us Canadians
Who came from over the sea
To stand up shoulder to shoulder
Till little Belgium is free.

What would they do in Canada
If they could cross the sea?
You know, it is Bill's ambition
Lord of the world to be.
They would treat us like Nurse Cavell,
Our homes they'd come and claim.
If I stood and let them do it
I'd feel I were to blame.

There are lads who've crossed the ocean,
And slackers who've stayed at home.
I and a French-Canadian
And fought upon the Somme;
So we can't all be cowards
(No doubt, there are a few),
For I am a French-Canadian
And I've been on Vimy, too.

You can see that the Canadians
Have won a glorious name;
Wherever they may go to fight
They win undying fame.
And many are French-Canadians
Keeping the flag unfurled,
Till the Kaiser learns he's beaten
And cannot rule the world.

Then I will take off the khaki
And return home over the sea;
I'll know my duty accomplished
And feel my conscience free.
But should I fall in battle
And never more cross the foam;
Thank God, I wasn't a slacker,
But helped to save my home.
—O. Lavoie.

Philip Nolan damned his country in 1807. Until he died in 1863 he never heard the name of his country mentioned again. He suffered one of the most terrible punishments ever inflicted on mortal man.

YOU live in the dearest land on the face of the earth. You enjoy the blessings of Liberty. But the Nation is at war. You are at war. Kaiserism and Hohenzollernism are seeking by every trick and strategy known to man and the devil to rob you of your Liberty and steal your country from you.

placement. The handsome I.O.O.F. Lodge room in the Harshaw Block presented an animated scene on Friday evening last, where the "U.E. Loyalist" Chapter and Committee I.O.D.E. gave a progressing Buchre party for the purpose of raising funds to carry on their patriotic work. After supper, which the gentlemen kindly assisted the members of the Chapter to serve expeditiously. The young people could not resist the lure of the polished floor of the adjoining hall and a jolly unpremeditated dance brought the enjoyable evening to a close. The committees wish to thank the members of the Lodge and all those who helped to make the evening a success, especially Mr. Wiggins and Mr. Poole who acted as cashiers at the entrance, the former making himself indispensable responding cheerfully to every appeal for assistance of whatever nature. A satisfactory sum was realized which will materially help the I.O.D.E. Committee to carry on their good work through the winter.

RESERVE MONDAY AND TUESDAY, THE 10th AND 11th DECEMBER.

Do not fail to see the new war pictures, depicting Canadian soldiers at Vimy Ridge and Arras, and showing the Retreat of the Germans, all taken on the spot. Afternoon performances will be for school children under 15 years of age, the evenings for those older, and for Adults..

Do not miss this opportunity, as these pictures will not be given here again.

We hope all our friends both in town and in the country will make arrangements to be present on one or both of these evenings, and thereby help our many calls for patriotic work.

Tickets, for adults, 25 cents. Children under 15 years, 10 cents.

Dr. Lockridge of Tamworth Shot.

Dr. Stewart Lockridge, of Tamworth, met with an unfortunate accident on Wednesday while deer hunting fourteen miles north of Lavent, and feared he would lose the thumb and first finger of his right hand. He was taken to the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, on Thursday afternoon and Dr. C. A. Morrison attended to his injuries. The badly smashed thumb and finger were fixed up as well as possible. Dr. Lockridge had shot a buck and another member of his party were proceeding towards Lavent. The gun of his companion was being laid on the ground when it discharged, with the result that the shot struck Dr. Lockridge in the hand. Dr. Lockridge is certain that it was the barrel of his own gun which stopped the bullet from going into his body. In describing the accident he said that lunch was to be prepared and the hunters were laying their rifles on the ground. The doctor was holding his rifle in his right hand when the bullet left the barrel of the other. It splintered the stock of the rifle he was holding and the bullet was deflected from his body and went into his hand. It has been found that it will not be necessary to amputate the thumb and first finger as was at first feared.
